5 a.m. and all is well.

We at Evenflo think baby wants more than milk in the wee hours. He wants a warm hug and a friendly playmate. So we created novelty nursers to keep baby happy as well as well fed.

The two newest additions to our [illegible]-year-old tradition of novelty nursers are Hooty Owl and Ruff Ruff Dog – little fellows that specialize in those early, early mornings when the moon isn't the only thing up. Quite a change, isn't it, from what you knew?

But one thing hasn't changed. The famous Evenflo nipple. The one that has fed over seventy million babies – more Uniquely made drinking cups for the little ones.

Santa's outdone himself this time. This Holiday Season he's made available cups designed after his own personality. That's right, Jolly Cups.

Kids love Santa's Jolly Cup characters; Piyo-Piyo, the little bird, Non-Non, the friendly penguin, Jolly Bear, Jolly Dog and Jolly Rabbit. Santa also offers a Jolly little thermos.

Jolly Cups are hard to tip over. Mrs. Claus loves that feature. And Jolly Cups are ideal for hot and cold drinks alike. Each Jolly Cup has a hat to cover the straw hole for handy storage of drinks not finished. Even a bend-whichever-way straw is included.

When Mrs. Claus complained about the Grandkids not brushing their teeth, Santa went right to work. That's what the Jolly Cups that hold their own tooth brush are made for (tooth brush is included). These cups make brushing time a jolly time.

For more information call T.T.Y. now. Kids will be glad you did. And ask for Santa.

Clearly a masterpiece

The tradition that inspired this magnificent work of art began over a century ago. With the establishment of an artistic dynasty whose very name is legend.

This is the legacy. Breathtaking beauty in full lead European crystal created by Igor Carl Fabergé. Grandson of Peter Carl Fabergé, whose lavish works, including the fabled jeweled eggs created for the Russian Czars, are among the most prized museum pieces in the world today.

Inspired by a romantic Russian legend, the clear stem of this spectacular glass is graced by a pair of Snow Doves. Magnificently sculptured in frosted crystal—a French tradition associated with the most prestigious cristaleries.

Yet each glass is just $55. And you may order on a convenient monthly payment plan.

They're available exclusively from The Franklin Mint. To order, return the order form by May 31, 1986. Or call 1-800-THE MINT.

London ceramics dealers Anna and Brian Haughton were receiving journalists at half-hour intervals in their cheerful suite in New York's Mayfair Regent Hotel. Attended by their American publicist Joanne Creveling, a graduate of the Mario Buatta Winter Antiques Show school of show management, they were tying together the many loose strings of their latest, most ambitious, and potentially most controversial enterprise—the International Antique Dealers Show, to be launched September 23–27 (with a benefit opening September 22) at New York's Seventh Regiment Armory.

Organizing antiques shows is something the Haughtons do very well, having established over the past decade two of the most successful specialist shows in Europe, the International Silver and Jewelry Fair and Seminar and the International Ceramics Fair and Seminar, both in London. But in presenting the New York show in September, which they are producing with the cooperation of the National Antique and Art Dealers Association of America, the Haughtons appear to be going head-to-head with the best established and most prestigious show in America, the Winter Antiques Show, a January tradition which for 35 years has made a great deal of money for the East Side House Settlement in the south Bronx.

The East Side show is regarded as the personal fiefdom of esteemed decorator Mario Buatta, who over the past fifteen years has transformed the formerly stodgy Winter Antiques Show into one of the chicest events of the winter season. The show raises about $800,000 annually for East Side House, nearly a third of its entire budget. Although his charm and wit are legendary, Buatta has not accomplished this by being a "nice guy." There are many people who dislike his autocratic manner when it comes to making decisions about such things as who is in and out of the show. Although there are committees who ostensibly rule by vote, Buatta, it is generally conceded, has the final word and often the first one, too.

The source of Buatta's power is East Side House itself whose aristocratic committee members are delighted by the money
